WHEN ORDINARY THINGS ARE TO BE BUILT, HARTMANN IS NO GOOD: HE NEEDS FAIRY-TALE BUILDINGS AND MAGICAL CASTLES, HE NEEDS PALACES AND CONSTRUCTIONS THAT MUST BE WITHOUT PRECEDENT, AND THEN HE CREATES ASTONISHING THINGS.

Detailed description: This page of a musical score contains measures 28 through 35. The tempo is marked 'Meno mosso, sempre maestoso.' The key signature has two flats (B-flat and E-flat), and the time signature is 2/2. The orchestration includes Flute 2, Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon 2, Cor Anglais, Trombone, Tuba, Timpani, Cymbals, Snare Drum, Harp, Piano, Violin, Viola, Violoncello, and Contrabass. Measures 28-31 feature sustained chords in the woodwinds and strings, with the bassoon 2 part having a 'segue' marking. Measures 32-35 show a more active texture with moving lines in the strings and woodwinds, while the piano and harp provide harmonic support with sustained chords.

PROMENADE.

Allegro giusto, nel modo russo; senza allegrezza, ma poco sostenuto.

1874.

Schumann Carnival

- Promenade
- [nel modo russo]

- Russian folk song: solo and chorus
- Irregular meter, 5/4, 6/4, 7/4
- Irregular number of voices: imitation of folk heterophony
- Not a pastiche, but a hyperbole
- "Glinka variations"
- Westernisms and deliberate crudeness (chromatic moves and false relations)

Deleted notes, in French:

Talk of the town: Monsieur Pimpant from Panta-Pantaléon has found his cow – the one that ran away. “Yes, Madame, that was yesterday”.

– No, Madame, it was the day before yesterday.

– Well, Madame, the cow was astray in the neighbourhood.

– No, Madame, the cow was not astray at all.

Talk of the town: Monsieur de Puissangeout has found his cow “Runaway”.

But the good women of Limoges will have nothing to do with the matter, because Mme de Remboursac has acquired some very fine porcelain dentures, while Mr de Panta-Pantaléon’s obtrusive nose obstinately remains as red as a peony.

wordplay and in-jokes

Stasov's explanations

- Bydło [Cattle]

- [Mussorgsky's private humorous subtitle: la télègue - the cart]

- The opposite of the previous piece (Tuileries)- focus on the low register - from West to East
- Left-hand texture associated with earthy characters (Varlaam in Boris Godunov)
- Deliberately crude and ugly music
- Possibly a reference to a labour song (like Song of the Volga Boatmen) - hauling something heavy
- Could be at the same time a symbol of oppression
- Chopin's left-hand figuration

- 'Samuel' Goldenberg and 'Schmuyle'

- Another registral change
- An argument - two distinct characters
- Imperious "oriental recitative" or synagogue chant vs a cymbalom-inspired material
- Dialogue and overlap

- 'Samuel' Goldenberg and 'Schmuyle'

NB: Latin text: With the Dead in a Dead Language

It would be good to have this in Latin: the creative spirit of the late Mr Hartmann is leading me towards the skulls; he addresses them, and the skulls slowly begin to glow

- Limoges
- Le marché (La grande nouvelle)
- Back to the high register for another scherzo
- Moto perpetuo genre
- Fascinated by chattering females (several operatic characters)
- The principle of interruption, subverting any regularity

- Catacombae (Sepulcrum romanum)
Catacombs (A Roman Sepulchre)
- Promenade in the minor
- (With the dead in a dead language)

- The greatest contrast yet?
- The echo principle
- Musorgsky communing with Hartmann's spirit: straightened-out Promenade and a chilling chromatic scale
- The tremolo: glowing skulls?
- A cathartic moment of ascension

- Baba-Yaga
- The Hut on Hen's Legs

- Another registral shock
- A hellish vision
- Musorgsky's fascination with the idea of witches' sabbath
- Folk dance motifs
- The interval of the tritone in the middle (connection to Gnomus) and tremolandos connecting to the preceding piece
- Russian "supernatural" modes
- The witch flies into the next piece
- Possibly a reference to Hartmann's appearance at an artists' masked ball wearing a costume of Baba-Yaga

- Nikolai Roerich, The Hut of Death (1905)
- Ancient funerary practice
- A wooden house for the deceased placed on tall stumps

Ivan Bilibin

THERE, AMONG THE ROWS OF PLASTER-OF-PARIS GREEK GODS AND GODDESSES, A WITCH WAS TO BE SEEN. THIS WAS BABA YAGA, RUNNING ALONG, WITH RED BRAIDS STREAMING BEHIND HER. A BIG FLOPPY HAT WAS PULLED DOWN OVER HER EYES, HER BONY ARMS PROTRUDED FROM HER SLEEVES. HER FACE WAS PAINTED, WITH A SPARSE BEARD ON HER CHIN, HER GHASTLY EYES GLINTED MALICIOUSLY, AND TUSKS JUTTED OUT FROM HER GAPING MOUTH.

– STASOV

- Baba-Yaga
- The Hut on Hen's Legs

- The Bogatyr Gate
- (in the great city of Kiev)

Schumann, "Triumphal Arch" from Fantasie in C

- A hymn-like melody, a "glory chorus"
- Connection with Russian Orthodox Church singing
- The bells - Musorgsky's trademark
- The inner cycle of variations on the Promenade comes to a triumphant conclusion
